Recipients

Above we listed the third parties that may potentially process your personal data too. We call these third parties 'recipients'. The table below lists all of these recipients. We have also stated what they do, plus their contact details. In this way you always know where your personal data is being processed.

Occasionally a recipient outside the EU will process your personal data. Rest assured, caveats are attached. The GDPR mandates us to take specific pre-determined steps in such an instance. Which, of course, we do. Below we have outlined the steps we take.

What is also important to remember is that Roompot isn't the owner and/or manager of every park. To facilitate your stay at the park we therefore need to share your reservation details with the park owners/managers. In such cases we bear joint liability for your personal data, with agreements in place to back that up. In a nutshell, this means Roompot is your point of contact for any queries or in the event of a data breach. Similarly, as a rule, it will be Roompot who notifies the authorities and yourself, of any potential data breach.

Would you like more information about your rights? If so, please visit the Dutch Data Protection Authority website.
